I have a JSON object, which is defined as: [{ "id": 1, "name": "Button" }, { "id": 2, "name": "Button1" }, { "id": 3, "name": "Button2" }, { "id": 4, "name": "Button3" }] I want to return an object like this: { "1": { "id": 1, "name": "Button" }, "2": { "id": 2, "name": "Button1" }, "3": { "id": 3, "name": "Button2" }, "4": { "id": 4, "name": "Button3" } } In my code, I define a function called findButton() and I pass a string to it to return the parent object. But when I run my code, it always return the parent object, and not the parent object by id. My code looks like this:

function findButton(name) { let button = {}; let parent = this; let buttonMap = {}; let parentMap = {}; let children = this.children; children.forEach(function(child) {
