Here's how the game works: 1. Choose whether to play as a guy or a girl. 2. Read the text from the top down. 3. Make your choices. 4. Read the next piece of text. 5. Repeat steps 2 - 4. 6. Reach the end of the text and read the ending. Use the arrows on the left to highlight what you're reading next. You can also use the back button on your browser or the Home button on your device to return to earlier pages. If you get stuck at a point in the walkthrough, take a break and come back later. [The meat log mountain is a 2,000 meter tall mountain, and you have to climb it without your boyfriend (or girlfriend) discovering your secret.] Prestige for Boyfriends/Girlfriends: - Cut the game intro and game story, making it the same length as the text in step 1. - Write the story as if you were writing your girlfriend/boyfriend a letter explaining why you have to go to the mountain to rescue a deer. Credits for Boyfriends/Girlfriends: - Write something for the game over screen. - Write something for the main menu. Byars Lake Site The Byars Lake Site is a regional prehistoric Native American archaeological site located near Powellville, Montana. The site was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 2007. Description The Byars Lake Site is a large regional site, covering about of land on the banks of the Little Rocky Mountain Fork of the Yellowstone River. The site includes a number of diverse areas including a residential and ritual area, an industrial area, and a charcoal and shell midden area. The Byars Lake area is located about north of the town of Powellville. The site itself is a terrace, formed by the confluence of three streams. Within the area, seven cists have been found. The site is named for its proximity to the much larger Byars Lake, which is to the northeast.
