Let's consider some of the different ways people can earn passive income, along with a couple of examples of it. 1. Invested income A very common method for generating income is investing money. You put your money into a pot and over a period of time earn a return on that money. It could be an index fund, where you invest your money in a collection of stocks that represent the investment market. It could also be an individual stock, where you invest in shares of a company you're passionate about. Either way, the growth of that investment portfolio will generate a passive income stream. And since you don't have to do much to earn it, that's a great way to build wealth. 2. Marginal income Another common way to earn passive income is by collecting dividends or interest from a portfolio of investments. You don't have to work very hard to earn this income, but it will generate an income stream that builds in a passive way. It's not as stable as invested income, since it depends on the performance of the portfolio. It's also not as exciting as investing, as you won't have any control over what happens to the investment. There's a third type of passive income that doesn't involve an active investment, although it's not always passive. This is income generated from ownership of assets. For example, you own a rental property and 2d92ce491b
