Autodesk AutoCAD is one of the best-selling desktop CAD software programs in the world, generating a combined total of

$1.2 billion in revenue in 2016. The program is used by a variety of different industries, including architecture, engineering, construction, engineering, manufacturing, and telecommunications. Autodesk supports AutoCAD with service contracts and has a dedicated support website with knowledge base articles, troubleshooting tips, and video tutorials. In recent years, Autodesk has introduced several new features and enhanced capabilities to AutoCAD, such as laser-guided design and free mobile apps. In addition to its native Windows, macOS, and Android versions, AutoCAD has been ported to mobile devices, such as iOS, Android, and mobile operating systems such as Windows 10, Windows Phone, and BlackBerry. Autodesk 3D/2D The most popular and well-known version of AutoCAD is AutoCAD Architecture. Like AutoCAD, AutoCAD Architecture is a desktop 2D CAD program that supports 2D drafting, 2D and 3D modeling, BIM, and for WindowsMarble pillars are found in many ancient buildings. But the exact formation process of these unique and beautiful buildings is still not fully understood. Now scientists at the University of Liège have discovered that the pillars are made from a durable, exceptionally hard substance called “hydroxylapatite.”

Hydroxylapatite is a naturally occurring mineral that forms in the bones, teeth and living cells of animals and plants. The new discovery, published in the scientific journal Nature Materials, could be used to create stronger, more resistant materials in various industries, including healthcare and the construction sector. Until now, most explanations of marble pillars have been too simplistic. The pillars' shape can be explained by laying a marble flat on a hard surface – a process that inevitably reveals the surface of the marble. Most explanations of marble pillars were too simple. The pillars were assumed to be made of a dense marble, like Italian marble. But under the microscope, scientists have found that the pillars are hollow. This observation led the scientists to believe the pillars were made of a harder, less dense stone. Instead of drilling into the pillars to reveal the mysterious material, a new method was employed. The scientists broke the pillars down into a powder and analyzed the chemical composition of the material. They discovered that the pillars are made of hydroxylapatite, a substance they had never observed in marble. This discovery explained the pillars' unusual shape. Hydroxylapatite is also the main component of bones, teeth and living cells. – We thought we were looking at a standard marble, but we had never seen this material before in marble. Finding that this mineral was also present in the marble was surprising, said Eric Smith, a researcher at the University of Liège and the first author of the paper. 5b5f913d15
