The incomplete phase II of acute rheumatic fever in the Irish paediatric population. Sixty-three patients with incomplete phase II of acute rheumatic fever were identified from review of the Irish Paediatric Rheumatology Clinic database, over a 7-year period. This represents an incidence of 3.2 (95% confidence interval (CI): 2.0-4.6) per 100,000 population. The incidence in the Irish paediatric population in our area was 1.3 per 100,000. In order to reduce this further, children with incomplete phase II should be considered for long-term suppression therapy.--- abstract: 'We consider quantum transport in a system consisting of a Luttinger liquid (LL) modulated by a static defect potential. Our aim is to study how the transport properties are influenced by the presence of the defect when they are of the order of the inelastic scattering length. We consider potentials of the harmonic oscillator form  $U(x)=k_{\perp}(x_0^2+|x|^2)$  with  $|x|$  being the position of the potential minimum. The exact Green's function for the homogeneous system is obtained and used to calculate the conductance in the presence of the defect for a range of defect strengths.'

Q: Getting a custom distance field to work for Google Maps API's Places/Places Autocomplete I have a custom distance field that I want to be used with Google Maps API's Places Autocomplete. I have tried replacing the default distance field with my own in the url : But the results are no good. Can anyone with custom distance fields experience help me? I'm using the Places Autocomplete Github example as a starting point: A: The distance type is called radius and not distance. If you would like to specify a different radius, you can use the radius distance type parameter. For example, to request a list of places a 10 mile radius from the user's location, use the following request:
