Q: Custom validators for in html form I have a form with in it. I would like to have the form, when filled out, checked if at least one checkbox is ticked. If user presses on submit button without tick at least one checkbox, then the form should be disabled. I tried to use a custom jQuery validator but without success so far. I have a select object, I'm trying to achieve this: `$("#form").validate({ rules: { #select option[value]:checked: { required: true } } });` I tried to use `required: isAtLeastOneTicked()` and this works fine when there is just one checkbox, but how to do this when there are several checkboxes in the same form? A: This is a simplified version of your code: `$("#form").validate({ rules: { #select option[value]:checked: { required: true } }, messages: { #select option[value]:checked: { required: "Please select some checkboxes" } } });` Working example: If you want to use the `isAtLeastOneTicked()` method to make your required rule work and stay inside the rules property, you need the `is()` function first like this: `$("#form").validate({ rules: { #select option[value]:checked: {`
