I have a table full of data, I wish to output it to one file and insert a particular message in the middle of the file? For instance, if I am having a table full of employee names, then I wish to have a message say 'List is done!' before the table is outputted to a new file. Is this possible? A: If you're asking about getting the data and the message into the file at the same time, you want to use an OUTPUT clause: INSERT INTO your_table(...); OUTPUT $msg_you_want_to_say INTO dbo.output_to_use; (Source: Using the OUTPUT Clause) Evaluation of a 1-day course on the management of dental emergencies in a school of community dentistry. The objective of this study was to investigate a 1-day course on the management of dental emergencies for students in their third year of a community dentistry program. Three instruments were used: a previously published Student Reaction Assessment Form for this course (SRAF); the Independent Evaluator Rating Scale (IER) and a 20-item questionnaire designed for this study. The IER measures the level of student satisfaction with the course by asking respondents to choose a number from the range of 1 (strongly agree) to 7 (strongly disagree). The Student Reaction Assessment Form consists of responses to questions to investigate the reactions of students to the course content and their reactions to the practical aspects of the course. The questionnaire consists of 20 items (8 clinical, 8 didactic, and 4 evaluation) that are quantitatively scored. Forty-one students were enrolled in the course, and 41 completed the questionnaires. The total mean student evaluation rating for the course was 66.8% (ie, SD = 19.0%). The highest evaluation was for didactic content (mean = 4.4, SD = 0.6) and lowest for evaluation (mean = 2.6, SD = 1.1). The overall mean student satisfaction response on the SRAF was 6.8 (SD = 2.0).
